The Truth About Not Having an Extended Auto Warranty

If you're reading this, I bet it's because every extended auto warranty website you visit wants you to believe that you MUST have an auto warranty and you should choose them because they offer the cheapest price. But as you probably already know, "You get what you pay for" and sometimes that means you would have been better off not having a warranty at all.

I mean, what's the point of having an extended auto warranty if you're going to get stuck fighting with the claims department all day and ultimately end up stuck with a huge repair bill anyway?

Fortunately, at DCI Warranty Services we understand the truth about what can happen when you don't have an extended auto warranty and we want to help you avoid those problems as much as we can, such as:

- Getting overcharged by a dishonest mechanic because there was nobody there to double-check the price of the repair
- Being stranded on a busy and dangerous highway with your kids in the back seat
- Underestimating how expensive some repairs can be and incurring a penalty for dipping into your secured savings early
- Facing the embarrassment of having to ask friends or family for financial help
- Having to cope without transportation for a week or more while the repair is completed because you can't afford a rental car

So instead of you worrying about all these things that might happen, why not go with an extended warranty company that will handle that for you? Heck, even if you never end up using the warranty, you'll still be better off just knowing we're here if you ever do need us. And we're never out to tell you that you MUST purchase from us, as long as you understand what might happen if you choose the wrong extended auto warranty company.
